Expert Witness & Consultant

Expert Witness

Dr. Kathryn Seifert is a Licensed Psychologist and Certified Forensic Consultant with over 30 years of research and clinical experience in the fields of violence and sexual offending. She is listed as an expert witness for the military and is available to evaluate offenders, assess their risk to the community, recommend treatment options, and testify on her findings and research in court.

Consultant

Stress Management/Team Conflict - An expert on treating trauma through stress management techniques, Dr. Seifert is available to offer monthly stress management workshops for your agency or organization. She's also available to mediate and resolve conflicts between agencies and teams.

Violence Prevention/Risk Assessment/Violence Risk Reduction - Screen out problem employees before you have a lawsuit on your hands. Dr. Seifert can consult with you to develop screening tools for assessing the risk of violence and sexual offending in the workplace. This is especially critical for organizations working closely with youth, women, and the survivors of past trauma. Dr. Seifert can devise a program to help you deal with severely problematic employees suffering from depression, addiction, and post-traumatic stress.

Supporting Grants Through Research - No one is giving away money these days without seeing some results. Everybody is looking for evidence-based practice. A published forensic psychologist and researcher, Dr. Seifert's expertise can prove whether your grant-funded programs are making a difference. This will help you secure additional funding, continue programs, and initiative new programs based on solid research.

About Dr. Kathryn Seifert

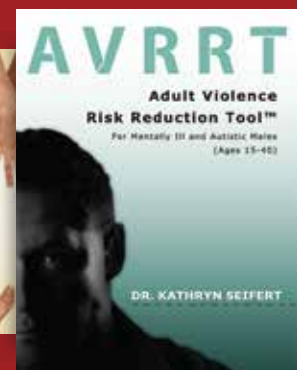

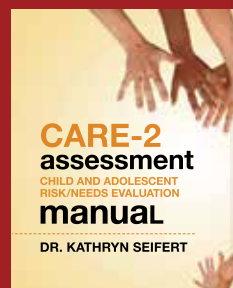

Dr. Kathryn Seifert is a renowned expert, with over thirty years of experience, and a leading voice internationally, in the areas of violence, mental health, bullying, criminal justice and addictions. She is the CEO of Eastern Shore Psychological Services (ESPS) and Care-2. Dr. Seifert specializes in the assessment and treatment of individuals, who are at risk for violence and those who are emotionally disturbed, behaviorally disordered, victimized, delinquent, and/or are suffering from attachment disorders. Frequently called upon by national television networks to discuss violence and mental health, Dr. Seifert has interviewed on Anderson Cooper 360 on CNN, Fox News, LME's Killer Kids and CBC in Canada. She has appeared on numerous radio shows and local television programs.

Dr. Seifert has written two books on youth violence, How Children Become Violent (Acanthus Publishing 2006) and Youth Violence: Theory, Prevention, and Intervention (Springer Publishing 2011). Dr. Seifert has received national recognition for her CARE-2 Assessment: Chronic Violent Behavior and Treatment Needs (Acanthus Publishing, 2007-2012), an assessment tool widely utilized by social workers, teachers, court personnel, and medical professionals, designed to identify youth who are at risk for violent behavior. Dr. Seifert is also the author of the AVRRT™, which enables professionals to provide risk reductions for mentally ill and autistic males 15-40. In recent years, she has devoted a significant amount of time to research for her upcoming book Failure to Attach: The Why Behind Terrorists and Mass Murderers.
